

THE RIVER BAND

In addition to his extensive solo work Rich has a band that keeps quite busy.

The River Band is now well into it's second decade and provides a wide range of music to a broad spectrum of events. Their work in a variety of venues has included charitable events, old home days, family fun days, church functions, outreach events, seminars, worship services, private functions and even senior events. The band's selections of uplifting, family friendly music makes them the perfect fit. As their website states "We've performed in a wide variety of settings. From celebrations to memorial services. From the state's capital to it's prisons. From Old Home Days and charity events to conventions and private functions." The River Band members perform in settings from a duo up to ten strong based on the venue and need.

HOUSE CONCERTS

"a wonderful vehicle for church home groups to reach out"

House concerts are the perfect venue to fully appreciate the beauty and engagement of the vibraphone, an instrument that's almost as much fun to watch being played as it is to listen to.

In the intimate setting of a house concert guests can be a part of the event, connecting with the artist and with each other.

Rich's ability to share stories, anecdotes, and humor brings people together. With a career as long and varied as Rich's there's a deep well to draw from. The ability to customize the performance to what will be meaningful to those attending creates the promise of a good time to be had by all. House concerts are a wonderful vehicle for church home groups or civic groups to reach out to friends, family, and community in a relaxed, enjoyable, and non-threatening environment.

SENIOR PROGRAMS

Rich's senior oriented programs feature jazz and popular standards, mostly from the first half of the 20th century (the songs these folks grew up with, the music they love).

In concert programs he also intersperses stories, trivia, and facts that accompany the music. He is frequently told that folks have enjoyed the spoken part of the program as much as the music.

It is an enjoyable "walk down memory lane".
